Rains In the Valley Are Of Great Benefit to Growing Cotton

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, August 26.—The weekly crop and weather review of the department of agriculture today says that in the South, during the past week, conditions generally were unfavorable.

The severe drought in southern Appalachian regions, including much of the adjoining states, was intensified by record-breaking temperatures and a continued absence of beneficial rains. All late crops are suffering badly. However, some rain in Florida was favorable for the setting of strawberries and helpful to citrus groves in the southern portions, although it was too wet on some low lands.

The weather in the cotton belt was less favorable than during recent weeks. Record breaking temperatures prevailed in the drought eastern sections of the belt. The drought in much of Texas was still unrelieved. In Alabama there was warm temperature with light showers in scattered places. Generally unfavorable for growth of crops. Good rains are much needed. Late corn and sweet potatoes mostly fair to good condition. Truck and minor crops mostly poor to fair and pastures drying up. Cotton mostly poor, deteriorating in some places, prematurely opening, shedding and rust due to heat and drought.

Good progress in north portion of state. Weevil damage slight.

Army Engineers Make Public Report On River Tragedy

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—War department reports on the sinking of the steamer Norman in the Mississippi river on June 15 has fixed the responsibility on "nearly all the district officials and employees directly connected with the boat and its operation." The report on the disaster, which cost 23 lives, has been made public by Major General Harry Taylor, chief of army engineers. It says that it is impossible at this time to fix responsibility "in appropriate degrees upon individuals."

The report was submitted to engineer headquarters here by a special army board, appointed to investigate the disaster. The vessel, belonging to the Mississippi river commission, the report said, apparently had been inspected.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, in stead of selling the Los Angeles to private individuals that can well afford to build their own dirigible, why not use the government's two big air ships in a campaign against the nation's mosquitoes?

You will be remembered for many things. When you retire from the presidential office, perhaps you will have built canals from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic, and undoubtedly you will encourage the airplane industry in a way that will make this country safe from future enemies.

This is to suggest that you use the dirigibles to destroy an ever present menace—the mosquitoes, all over the United States.

TO DESTROY the mosquitoes would be to destroy malaria, and all possibility of yellow fever. To wipe out malaria would add to the wealth of the United States an amount far greater than our national debt five times over.

Two Persons are Killed When The Station Is Besieged

(Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Aug. 26.—Two persons were killed when Chinese police today fired into a crowd of dockyard workers, besieging the police station, and demanding the release of four arrested workmen. Four of the besiegers were wounded.

The workmen held by the police had been arrested for assaulting a coolie. About 1,300 people gathered about the police station and shots fired into the air failed to intimidate them, whereupon the police turned their guns against the front ranks.

Seeing their comrades fall, the remainder of the mob fled.

WIPING out mosquitoes in one place does no good. They travel from place to place on trains, automobiles, etc. A campaign to exterminate mosquitoes all over the country would be worthy of any president, more profitable in saving than anything ever done by any president.

NOT SURPRISED AT ADORATION

Years Of Fame Have Left Him Untouched Visitor Declares

Walter Johnson is possessed of all the splendid characteristics the press has ascribed to him, in the opinion of Claude McMillian, prominent local citizen, who has returned from Washington, where he had the pleasure of spending sometime in the home of the noted baseball star.

It will be recalled that Mr. McMillian's brother was elected to congress sometime ago from the Charleston, S. C., district. Congressman McMillian's secretary formerly was secretary of Congressman Roberts, of Nevada, father-in-law of Mr. Johnson, and is well acquainted with the Washington pitcher.

When the local resident reached Washington, the secretary took Mr. McMillian and his family to visit the Johnson home, one of the prettier homes in Washington. Mr. Johnson, his wife and four children dwell there in perfect happiness, Mr. McMillian stated.

"Walter Johnson is one of the kindest most lovable men I ever met," Mr. McMillian said. "Despite the fact that Walter Johnson has reached the peak in baseball and is adored by thousands upon thousands of fans, this adoration has left him untouched. He is still just as plain as an old shoe and entirely democratic. I am convinced that the newspaper tributes to Walter Johnson are all entirely true. After meeting him I am not surprised that he holds such a place in the affections of the American public."

Johnson dislikes to "talk shop," Mr. McMillian stated.

"It was difficult to get him to talk about baseball at all. When he did make some comment on diamond activities, it was almost invariably some remark which literally had been dragged from him. He prefers to talk about farming and kindred subjects. Johnson did say, however, that the last game of the world's series, when Frisch greeted him with a triple, was the most tense moment of his entire life."

Regarding the chances of the Senators to repeat this year, Johnson said that the Athletics had a splendid chance to win, provided their young team did not crack under the strain.

Mr. McMillian stated that during his visit at the capital, he also had the pleasure of meeting again G. H. Winslow, formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary here, who now is in Washington, having retired from Y. M. C. A. work and now is serving as secretary of the Rotary club.

Mr. Winslow asked particularly about all of his old friends in the Twin Cities, Mr. McMillian stated.

Mrs. McMillian and Frances McMillian will return home Saturday.

GOVERNOR RETURNS SEVERAL TO PRISON

One Morgan Man In the List of Those Whose Paroles Revoked

One Morgan County man is included in the list of five persons whose paroles have been revoked by Governor Brandon, following investigations of the record make by prisoners after their release from prison on paroles.

Announcement was made in The Daily several weeks ago that W. P. Hampton, state law enforcement officer for this district, recently has been completing a check on all persons in North Alabama who have been paroled from state institutions;

Within the last ten days, five paroled prisoners have had their paroles revoked, and have been returned to prison to serve out their sentences as though they had never been paroled. The list of these whose paroles were revoked comprised: Clifford Frazier, Bibb County, who received a 20 year sentence for a statutory offense February 21, 1923; Sherman Posey, Morgan county, who received 2 to 3 years for burglary, June 27, 1922; Henry Meadows, DeKalb county, who was given 2 1-2 to 4 years for distilling August 31, 1923; John Joseph Cooney, Mobile, who was given 6 months hard labor for violation of the prohibition law, February 3, 1923; and Clara Therukill, Jefferson county, who received 9 months and a $250 fine for vagrancy March 28, 1925. The revocation of the parole of the Therukill woman was recommended by the trial judge and the solicitor, and in the other four cases, by law enforcement officers.

LONG CONTROVERSY ON RATE SCHEDULE ALMOST AT AN END

Increase Is Granted To Company But Not Much As Wanted

WILL REPORT TO FEDERAL COURT

Mediation Efforts Are Believed To Have Met Success

The water rate controversy in Albany and Decatur apparently is near an end today, with the Alabama Water company receiving an increase in rates here, but not so large an increase as is, at present, being collected.

Commissioner Morgan, of the Alabama public service commission, reported to The Daily, over long distance telephone early this afternoon from Sheffield, that Commissioner Lee had returned from Birmingham, where he placed the basis of agreement, mapped out here at a conference Monday, before John B. Weakley, president of the water company, and had obtained the latter's assent to the compromise.

According to tabulations here, the compromise provides that charges for the smaller consumers of water which were 90 cents a month, before any raise went into effect, and are $1.25 a month now, will be only $1.10 under the new schedule; the next larger class of water consumers who paid $1.33 a month before the raise was effective, and who pay $1.75 now will pay under the new schedule $1.60.

The compromise also included a rearrangement of fire hydrant charges. Instead of charging $50, in each city, for the first 100 hydrants, as sought in the new schedule of the company, the total hydrants in both cities will be classed as being in one municipality, and the cities will pay $50 for the first 100 and $40 for the next 100. There are slightly more than 200 fire hydrants in the two cities.

The following dispatch was received by The Daily today from Birmingham Appeal to the federal court has won from the Alabama Water company a rate raise at Albany-Decatur for which it has been fighting sometime.

With the prospect of the case going into the United States court within a week, the Alabama public service commission has just granted the water company permission to put in to effect the schedule for which it has been contending with two minor changes.

To these changes the commission has agreed, and the case has been settled.

The rate raise will not mean a great deal to individual water users in the Twin Cities, but will produce a revenue for the water company of more than $10,000 annually, which represents approximately a 6.5 return on the $216,000 to the company has spent improving the plant since the old rate was fixed in 1920.

The company's efforts to get an increase in rates for more than a year past had been unsuccessful. Two months ago the company applied for and obtained an injunction in federal court, which restrained the public service commission from interfering with a new rate the company had put into effect.

At a hearing a month ago to determine whether the injunction should be permanent, the commission sought to have the injunction set aside, asking that the commission be allowed to continue in control of the matter. Three federal judges, however, declined to grant this request and announced that unless the case was settled out of court within 30 days, the court would go into the matter of rates. The specific time would have been up Friday. The contention centered largely around a question of

ROGERS TO SPEAK AT MASS MEETING AT THE PRINCESS

Definite And Tentative Places Are Filled In Day's Program

BANQUET STARTS AT FIVE O'CLOCK

Will Be Served At The Gymnasium Of The Albany School

Definite and tentative plans for celebration of the beginning of work on the Tennessee river bridge here, on September 17, were outlined last night at a meeting of the various committees and efforts were being made today to get in touch with Governor Austin Peay of Tennessee, Governor W. W. Brandon, of Alabama, and General Sibert, to ascertain definitely whether or not they will be able to accept the place on the program assigned to them.

The day's program will be opened with a gigantic mass meeting at 10 o'clock in the Princess theater, when John Rogers, chairman of the Alabama highway commission, will deliver an address. This was decided upon definitely by the committees in session last night at the Y. C. A. Following the conclusion of the speaking program, the visitors here will be entertained in various ways until 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when the ceremonies will be resumed at the Alabama street site of the bridge. At that time the committee has invited as speakers: Governor Peay, General Sibert and Governor Brandon.

This part of the program is tentative, until the committee can receive acceptances from the three executives. The banquet will begin at five o'clock in the afternoon and will be served in the gymnasium of the Albany high school. Arrangements will be made for entertaining 150 out-of-town guests on that occasion, including officials of Alabama, Tennessee, and Kentucky, as well as many county officials of North Alabama.

John Patterson, Morgan County legislator and one of the leaders of the bridge movement, will serve as toastmaster at the banquet and as master of ceremonies during the entire day's celebration.

A stunt committee, the personnel of which has not yet been made public, will arrange a series of entertainment features throughout the day.

All of the sub-committees have been requested to make reports Friday evening at a meeting to be held at 7:30 o'clock in the director's rooms of the Morgan County National bank.

Board Continues Probe of Whipping

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 26.—The Jefferson County grand jury today continued its probe into convict camp conditions. The state board of administration, which has control over convicts, made public numerous letters from the state board since February.

In these, it was stated, the board of revenue had been told that convict whippings had been too numerous. To this the board of revenue answered that it had talked with Dr. Glenn Andrews monthly, concerning conditions in the camp and whatever he recommended the wardens were notified.

Captain Lacey Edmondson, chairman of the board, said that one warden, Sam Elliott, of Camp number two, was brought before the board and given instructions as to whipping.

"Oh! Jerry—by the way—Duane will be there."

Jerry did not move, did not turn her eyes. "Oh, will he?"

"Yes. The Weatherbys asked him to go, and I told him to go by all means. I don't feel that he should miss a good time just because you feel a little—er—sensitive about his presence, do you? It's a wonder you haven't run into him before this. They're inviting him everywhere. And besides—"

"Oh, don't hesitate on my account. Go right ahead. Besides what?"

"Besides, as I've said before, there are more nice girls in this town than there are nice boys. Other men have daughters as well as I, and daughters requiring beaus. And I must say that some fathers seem to have daughters with a greater degree of that sweet reasonableness they talk about than my own."

Jerry smiled sympathetically. "Poor father!" she said. "You did have rather bad luck getting only me. But however much you may prefer other fathers' daughters to your own, you can't get rid of me. No trading daughters. Things aren't done that way. You must keep what you get, whether you like it or not."

She touched him lightly on the shoulder as she passed by and went quickly up the stairs.

Jerry looked at Prudence. "Is she going?" he asked in a loud whisper.

"I don't know."

They tiptoed together to the doorway and listened. There was no sound from Jerry's room above.

They tiptoed back. "Now if she has any notion of going there and snubbing him in public I won't stand for it," Jerry said, still whispering. "After all, she brought him here, and she shan't—"

"Oh, don't you worry about that. She wants to make him eat the dust before her, but she'll never give anybody else a chance to laugh at him. You'll see!" And then she added, half hopefully, half wistfully, "Perhaps they will make it all up tonight, and then we'll have him here for Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow!"

CHAPTER IX

A Little for Remembrance

At a quarter to seven Prudence tapped lightly on Jerry's door.

"I'll be right down," Jerry's voice from behind the closed door was very low, a little strained. She did not ask her mother to come in, and Prudence made no such offer, but went directly down and stood silently, anxiously beside her husband in the lower hall and awaited the coming of her daughter.

Jerry wore the flame-colored gown of chiffon velvet, and as she stood above them on the steps, smiling down at them, involuntarily they exclaimed at the fresh, bright revelation of her beauty.

"Of course a daughter studying Art in New York will wear what she pleases—in New York," said Jerry, frowning with a great assumption of disapproval, although his eyes shone with his pride and pleasure in her loveliness. "But if you ask me—though nobody did—I call that dress a little—well, snappy for the old home town."

"It is beautiful," said Prudence. "I thought you did not like it, Jerry. You

Jerry carefully placed the great cloak about his daughter's shoulders.

"You have too much rouge on," he objected.

"I know it," she assented. "But I am a shocking color tonight in the natural. So pale I am positively yellow. Do you think perhaps I may be getting thin-blooded, mother? I never used to look so white."

"Perhaps you need a tonic," Prudence suggested, though she knew in her heart that Jerry needed no such thing.

Jerry carefully assisted Prudence and Jerry into the car and sat in the corner beside them, holding Jerry's hand.

Jerry's fingers were like ice. But there was nothing of drooping sadness in her pose; rather with a strained her eyes brilliant, her slender chin tilted to an unwonted high degree.

They knew everyone at the clubhouse, and as they made their way to the table reserved for them in a far corner they were obliged to stop by many chairs for a laughing word with one and another. They saw Duane on the moment of their entrance. He was at a table with Irvin Weatherby and his wife and Edith, the oldest of his three daughters. Happily, that table was not directly on the aisle they passed through. They lifted their hands to Jerry as she went by, nodding, laughing, and Jerry swept them all in a quick, bright greeting, forming the words, "I'll see you later," with her lips as she passed.

Duane was amazed at the studied perfection of her manner, the absolutely impersonal friendliness of her glance.

"Let me get someone to sit with us," Jerry suggested, as they reached their table. "I'm afraid we may seem dull. We should have made up a party."

Jerry put a pleading hand on his arm. "No, father, please. I'd so much rather be—just by ourselves."

"I don't want him to think you—we—I don't want anyone to think—anything."

Jerry floundered for words. In his partisanship of Jerry, he would have no stranger, not Duane Allerton nor any other, have a chance to suspect her of any loneliness or subject to any slight.

Jerry smiled gratefully for his concern as she slipped prettily into her chair. She shook her head.

"You certainly are a sweet old thing, father. But I am not trying to impress him. I don't care to make him jealous. I don't want to try any childish bluffing. I just feel like having you and mother. So why bother?"

For at least the thousandth time in his life Jerry told himself proudly that Jerry was a little brick. She looked about the great room with her usual air of friendly interest, nodded to her friends here and there, chatted a little with those near her, and discussed the gowns, complexions and coiffures of the other women with her mother. She even made a brave pretense of eating her dinner as it was placed before her. But when once in a while her fingers touched her father's hand, the icy chill of them cut him like a flash.

At first, in his loyalty to her, he would not even look across to the Weatherby table after that first greeting as they entered the room. But finally, when he realized that Jerry had herself perfectly in hand and needed no anxiety of his, he turned that way. Duane's eyes, smoldering, somber, were fixed upon her lovely profile, the cloudy blackness of her dark hair, the creamy whiteness of her throat and the shoulder half turned from him.

Jerry could not withhold a friendly, sympathetic smile, and Duane responded with a grateful, unsmiling nod.

"Any fool could see what's in his mind," Jerry thought. "The whole town will be buzzing with it now."

When they went into the ballroom the orchestra was playing. They found a pleasant place for Prudence to sit, and Jerry danced with her father. Then she danced with young Doctor Morse, and then with Newton Macklin, each time returning to her place beside her mother. It was after the third dance, when Duane had performed his duty as guest to his hostess and to Edith and had sat out a stupid dance with old Mr. Weatherby, that he excused himself with stumbling words, and with stubborn determination, with trepidation in his heart, he turned his steps toward Jerry.

They saw him coming. Jerry's pleasant smile froze upon his features, and he toyed nervously with the narrow chain at his watch. Prudence held her breath. Only Jerry kept up her light, bright chatter, although her fingers shook. Duane continued doggedly toward her, his eyes upon the cloudy blackness of her hair.

Jerry spoke quickly as he drew near, holding out his hand. His voice was very friendly.

"Oh, hello, Duane. How do you like the Middle West at its very wickedest?"

"Oh very much, sir, thank you," Duane clung to his hand like a man drowning, but Jerry passed him on, perforce, to Prudence.

"You've met my wife, I know—"

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Harmer. But it seems a very long time. It is very good to see you again."

Prudence lifted her hand, lifted both hands, greeted him with a warm, almost foolish effusiveness, but she could not postpone the inevitable. He looked beyond her to Jerry.

"G—good evening," he said lamely, and his eyes were riveted to the haughty lift of her chin.

Jerry smiled. Mindful of the eyes of the friendly, always interested home town, she lifted a slender, ice-cold hand and dropped it for a moment in his. She caught her breath at the sudden contact. If he retained it, if he drew it warmly into his, caressed it, as he had done in the studio that forgotten and unforgettable night, she knew she could not withstand the tenderness of his touch. Duane held it barely a second longer than is allowed by a strict convention, and released it slowly.

"Will you sit down?" she offered generously, in gratitude for his relinquishment.

The way he dropped into a chair beside her gave somehow the impression of a ship tossed in a stormy sea, suddenly and surprisingly finding that its anchor held.

ADVANCE CREWS OF CIRCUS ARRIVE

Advertising Car Here From Nashville To "Tell the World"

John Robinson's Circus, oldest "white top" on the face of the globe is coming to Albany-Decatur, coming for afternoon and night performances and free street parade on Friday, September 11. It will be the first big circus to appear here this year and is the only show scheduled for this community at present.

The trains of John Robinson will arrive in the city about the time the milkman is making his rounds on the morning of Friday, September 11th from Nashville, via the L. and N. railroad. After the two performances and parade here the show goes to Birmingham, and then Chattanooga and Knoxville, as John Robinson is playing only the larger cities of the south on his 102nd tour.

Advertising Car No. 1, arrived in Decatur early this morning on Train No. 7 from Nashville. Shortly after sun-up the twenty-two members of the advance crew detained and started their task of heralding the coming of the big circus. Men were dispatched to the surrounding countryside in automobiles while others remained in the city proper and by nightfall advantageous locations will be covered with the bright and lurid posters, that depict the wonders of the Robinson performance.

Trained wild animals are featured on the 1925 tour and two of the extraordinary displays will be Miss Lorraine Wallace and "Kittie" the only wrestling Royal Bengal tiger in the world, and Theo Schroeder and his group of fighting Siberian Polar bears. Capt. Ricardo, dean of American subjugators will have a large group of African lions, while Miss Nellie Roth, Ione Caryl, Margaret Thompson and Dewey Butler will work other displays of jungle brutes in the steel arena.

The downtown ticket sale on Circus day will be located in the Alabama Drug store in Decatur.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—Ross Young New York Giant's right fielder, suffered a fracture of the right hand in two places, when hit by a ball pitched by Pete Donohue, Cincinnati twirler yesterday, and probably will not be able to play again this season, it became known today.

It was a double blow for Young, who was notified yesterday he had been fined $100 by John Heydler, president of the National league, for precipitating a row with Donohue, after being hit by the ball which caused his injury. At that time, however, damage was not apparent. Donohue was not punished, as he was not held responsible for the disturbance.

25 Years of

to Highway Transportation

25 years of anticipating the requirements of motorists—making manufacturing processes more certain—producing a higher standard of quality—25 years of unswerving adherence to the Firestone pledge, "Most Miles per Dollar"—summarizes Firestone's record of service to car owners.

Firestone factories have grown from a small building approximately 75 x 150 feet to mammoth plants having floor area of over 60 acres—from a capital of $50,000 to over $50,000,000—from an annual sales volume of $100,000 to over $100,000,000—all in the short period of 25 years.

This Firestone record could only have been made through furnishing the public with outstanding values and is, consequently, your assurance of quality and lowest prices.

If you would like to know more of this wonderful record, ask your Firestone dealer to send you an illustrated folder.

With today's high cost of crude rubber and other raw materials, Firestone's opportunity to serve the public was never better, due to its great volume and special advantages in buying, manufacturing and distribution.

12 Years Ago TODAY

From The Daily of
August 26, 1913

A night hunt with hounds failed to locate the assailant of Chief of Police W. V. Davidson, who was cut painfully by a negro yesterday.

A cat in a tree after chickens caused an East Poplar street resident to take several shots at the feline last night. Alarmed neighbors thought a battle was in progress and turned in a police alarm.

J. W. Murphy bought the first bale of cotton this morning at 12.5 cents from J. F. Armstrong. The cotton was ginned by the Home Oil Mill. Later the bale was sold to Harris, Cortner and company.

Miss Hazel Thomas has returned from an extensive stay in Georgia and Alabama points. C. L. Saunders and bride are with Mrs. M. L. Hardage.

The "Miss America" contest seems to be operated on the "beauty unadorned" idea.

Initiation is not so good as initiation, but at that, it is better than nothing at all.

Muscle Shoals power, a dream of years, is a reality at last.

In the meantime, with schools opening for the fall sessions, we should not forget that we still are not appropriating enough money to the rural institutions.

If all creditors were as easy to make "arrangements for payment" with as Uncle Sam, what a wonderful world this would be.

The Age-Herald speaks of "Henry Ford's new role." Most of the interest about Henry Ford centers in Ford's "big roll."

Mayor Hylan, now engaged in a campaign for reelection, is called "dull but honest." Sounds like a flare-back to the Bowery melodramas of 25 years ago.

A caller at The Daily office, upon reading that Egypt hanged seven as the slayers of Sir Lee Stacks, suggested that Egypt believed in being sure of "getting her man."

Washington has started a movement to attract rich settlers. Washington, we are informed, wants to attract the "leisure class." Hasn't the capital been doing something of that nature for a great many years?

HUNTSVILLE PEOPLE TO SEEK BRIDGE AT WHITESBURG CROSSING.

Huntsville's efforts to raise funds for construction of a highway bridge across the Tennessee river at Whitesburg crossing will be watched with more than ordinary interest in Albany and Decatur, because of several reasons. The Twin Cities tried for many years to interest sufficient capital in a bridge project, to insure the construction of one here, before the state highway commission came to our rescue. The Twin Cities' wonder if Huntsville will find the path any easier of travel.

Another feature of the proposed Whitesburg bridge, which will be of interest here, is the open designs Huntsville has on the trade of eastern Morgan County. Huntsville frankly stated that she is going after that market and Huntsville will get it too, unless Albany and Decatur can offer the people of that section more inducements for trading here. That is a matter which our merchants should be giving some consideration to.

The Huntsville Daily Times says: Suggestions are pouring in upon the Chamber of Commerce committee and it is generally believed that the bridge would add large and rich area to the mainland as well as annex the trade of Eastern Morgan County.

The people living across the river are, if possible, more interested in the bridge than are the people on this side. It is a vital question with them. It would link them with world commerce in such a way that has never been known before. At present they are dependent upon miserable roads and indifferent ferry service for connection with the outside world. A bridge would put them in touch with Huntsville on a parity with Hazle Green, Gurley, Madison and other rich and thriving sections that are no closer to this city than that section of Morgan County situated across the great river.

Huntsville merchants can vision an increase in this city's trade of at least half million dollars a year that would follow the development of the country across the river. Sparsely settled now, that region would bring itself to the immediate attention of the new people that are pouring into Northern Alabama and of private capital to undertake the construction and operation of a bridge appears to be the plan most favored. The probable cost is estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000 and it is not believed that any great difficulty would be experienced in providing the finances.

The Chamber of Commerce committee that has been assigned to this task is expected to meet the early part of this week and begin the discussion of some definite plan of action. An announcement from this body is being eagerly awaited.

The Times also conveys the information that the suggestion for organization of a corporation to build the bridge and the sale of stock to finance the undertaking seems to be the plan most favored. There are objectionable features to such a plan, however, and in a spirit of friendliness The Daily would point them out. While the statement is not made flatly, the intimation is that a bridge constructed by private capital would be a toll bridge. The Daily hopes that such will not be the case.

Finance has ridden the river of toll bridge there, and crossings over the Tennessee at that point are without cost. The new bridge here will be free, and it is to be hoped that the Huntsville proposes at Whitesburg also will be free. It would mean a great advertisement for the Tennessee Valley section should we be able to brag of having a trio of free crossings.

The people of Albany and Decatur will, in a spirit of friendly rivalry, fight for the trade of Eastern Morgan County, bridge or no bridge, but the people of Albany and Decatur are pulling with all their hearts for Huntsville to get her bridge. Whatever helps any part of the Valley, helps all other parts. The temporary advantages created by shifting conditions, is must be remembered are only temporary, but we all are building for the future. Now that we have our bridge, we are willing to help Huntsville in any way we can to get her's also.

A STRONG PULL NOW WILL TURN THE INDUSTRIAL TIDE TO ALABAMA

The visit here recently of G. W. Rosenfeld, Miami real estate operator, and a party of Miami visitors, has attracted more than passing attention. The press of Alabama sees in the visit more than a casual inspection of the Muscle Shoals district. Newspapers of the state see in the visit the turning of the industrial tide toward the Tennessee Valley and, naturally, toward the other sections of this commonwealth.

The Rosenfeld visit is only one of the several indications which have been given lately of intense interest on the part of native Floridians and visitors to the state, in the possibilities of really development in North Alabama. Inquiries have been received here from at least two other sources.

While others are waiting, however, Mr. Rosenfeld seems to be active. He announced while here that he would return in thirty days with a party of 50 visitors, more than three times the size of his original party. The inference is that this next trip will be followed by even larger parties and the time may not be long before returning busses from Florida will be equally as heavily loaded as those going into the state.

Citizens of Alabama, and particularly those of North Alabama, however, must not be caught sleeping on their opportunities. We must be awake. Right now our chamber of commerce would do well to press Mr. Rosenfeld and his party to come here to attend the bridge celebration and to spend a few days in our midst. We must keep in touch with the situation.

Regarding the possibilities offered, the Anniston Star says:

Alabama is beginning to "cash in" on the Florida boom. Florida to share in the prosperity that has come to that state, are looking around now for some new investment fields to enter and naturally they are finding what they wish in Alabama.

Recently a Miami, Florida, real estate man took a party of fifteen people from Miami to the Muscle Shoals district in Alabama, where probably the greatest development in the history of the South is under way. The party from Florida came to Alabama to look into the opportunities this state offers for investment and for homemaking and they came from a state that is attracting more general attention as a field for investment than any other state in the Union. The incident is significant. It shows that the tide is turning, that from the Florida ruin Alabama may expect to derive great benefit and that already the advantages this state offers are appreciated by people in the very heart of Florida's greatest boom activity.

Commenting upon the coming of the Floridians to Alabama at this time, the Albany-Decatur Daily says: "Because Florida has obtained sufficient notoriety to bring people from other sections into the South is no reason why Alabama should not take advantage of an unusual situation to display her resources before the critical eyes of the wiser investors." The Florence Daily News thinks we may expect many more visitors from Florida, and the Birmingham Age-Herald sees in the new trend an opportunity for team work by Alabama with Florida.

There are big possibilities in the suggestion. The Age-Herald says:

Without detracting from Florida's greatness or interfering in the slightest with that state's development, Alabamians, by mingling among the crowds of investors there can direct attention to their own state in a way that will be of incalculable value. Nor will the benefit all be upon one side, for with Alabama's bright future the man who is induced to invest here does himself a favor. Many of the thousands of people who are passing through Alabama on their journey southward will be impressed with this state's advantages and will be glad to seize the opportunity offered for a permanent home and for investment of capital not otherwise engaged.

Inasmuch as many who now are in Florida and many more who may be expected to go there from all parts of the country must inevitably look around soon for other investment fields and other opportunities for engaging in development work where there is not so much of the boom element present. Alabama may profit greatly by the kind of boosting the Birmingham paper suggests. Also Alabama can do a good work for its own development right now by carrying out fully and energetically the advertising campaign planned by President J. C. McLendon, of the Alabama Press Association through a state-wide organization, in which commercial organizations and the people generally will co-operate.

The meeting called by President McLendon for September 3 at Montgomery to push the Alabama advertising movement and perfect an organization to carry it forward, should be largely attended. It should be made a great booster meeting of Alabama people in behalf of a greater Alabama. The opportunity offered by the attention being directed to the South through the Florida boom is one Alabama cannot afford to ignore. The whole country now is looking to the South as the land of opportunity and Alabama can offer greater advantages than

MOUTHS OF CHILDREN NEED GREAT CARE

Parents Should Insist on Regular Daily Use of a Tooth Brush by Each Child If Illness Is to Be Avoided.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY is it that persons who are educated and apparently sensible about everything else, will permit their children to neglect the teeth? There is such a contrast between the pearliness and beauty of perfectly kept teeth, and the discoloration and unsightliness of neglected teeth, that it would seem the most natural thing in the world to give the necessary care. But it isn't done.

I wish one particular mother might see this article. She has a daughter who is one of the finest specimens of young girlhood I ever saw. There is just one observable defect. The child's teeth have a line of "tartar" at the roots of her well shaped and apparently strong teeth. These particles of stain reveal neglect.

One of the first duties of a parent is to insist on regular daily use of the tooth brush. Regular visits to the dentist are just as important as regular examinations for

The physical requirements demanded by the public school authorities have gone far to overcome the prevalence of dental defects which used to prevail. I hope the private schools are just as exacting in such matters.

Without good health, an education is of small consequence. It is recognized today that a very considerable percentage of illness met in hospitals can be traced to bad teeth. The first step towards decay and abscess is neglect of the tooth brush.

I heard about the graduating class from a public grammar school. Of the seventy girls in it, only one had perfect teeth. The remaining sixty-nine had an average of sixteen dental defects, cavities or lost teeth. This is a dreadful record.

Every parent should bear in mind that cleanliness of the teeth is not a fad, a sign of foppishness, or a useless expenditure of time and money. On the contrary, it is one of the most important of all the health measures we recommend.

Have you ever thought how we abuse our mouths? To begin with, the food we take is not always as clean and fresh as it should be. We take a lot of uncovered food and pastry. The water and milk we drink is not always free from germs. We put into our mouth, pins, pencils, sticks, stems of plants, and worse than all, our own dirty fingers. Every day unclean things come into contact with our teeth.

If Nature had not made the teeth so strong and well covered not one of us would escape serious dental trouble. But no one of us can avoid seeing the dentist on occasions. The wise thing is to go regularly. I am talking to you about the teeth today, because the beginning of the school year is a good time to check up on the physical defects. No one of them is more vital to the present and future welfare of your child killing twenty-five Englishmen? said "No." It was thirty-five.

Another, as they put the rope around his neck, exclaimed: I did this for God. He knows whether I am guilty or innocent."

THERE is bitter hatred of British domination in Egypt, India, China and other places, but you observe that in the end the British have their way.

In Egypt seven men are hanged for killing one. Gandhi, who tried to upset British rule in India, was put in jail and kept there, the three hundred million Asiatics ruled by a few British in India offering no resistance.

The British empire knows how to rule other countries and other races and its about the only government that does know how.

THIS should interest some of the dodos in our army and navy, unaware of the flying machine's importance in war.

It certainly will interest President Coolidge, keenly alive to the fact that future wars will be won and lost in the air.

The British consider trading Gibraltar, the mighty fortress, for an air station on the other side of the straits of Africa.

A FEW YEARS ago that would have been unthinkable. Great Britain felt that with Gibraltar in her hands she held the door to the Mediterranean safe forever.

But the British generals, Ashmore and Steele, vice marshal of British air forces having investigated the famous Gibraltar rock, declare it would be worthless against air attack. And they also advise offering Gibraltar to Spain, if Spain, in exchange, will give Cota on the other side of the straits for an air base.

SENATOR BORAH objects to the debt settlement with Belgium, not because it was generous, but because it was based on the assumption that a war president could bind this nation by promises, that he had no legal right to make. Senator Borah's objection is sound.

There is no knowing what inflated presidents we may have wandering around the world in days to come. Other countries should know that the United States is managed in accordance with the wording of the United States constitution, not in accordance with the philanthropic hallucinations of men in office or their "dilusions of grandeur."

IF THIS government wants to be generous, it might begin at home with the judges in federal court. These men are shamefully underpaid, getting $3,500 a year or less, a low pay based on ancient conditions, when a judge could live well for one-third of today's costs.

Senator Reed and Representative Graham of Pennsylvania have introduced a bill providing a new scale that would pay the judges $14,000 or $15,000, depending on the population of the district. The bill should be passed.

Increasing the salaries of judges as above would cost this government only $700,000 a year. The richest country in the world can afford to pay its judges at least half way decently.

CARDINAL DUBOIS, of Paris, criticized for urging all French Catholics to subscribe generously to the new loan, explained yesterday his reasons:

"The safety of France is in question. Can we with indifference see her credit founder in revolution and anarchy?"

The Cardinal says that failure of the French loan would mean the coming in of a violently radical socialist ministry and "blood-stained oppression."

To France, England, Italy, Spain, the possibility of revolution, so far away in this country, is an immediate, pressing danger.

AN ABLE German chemist has produced half a ton of fine oil from one ton of coal in twelve minutes. That will interest the Standard Oil company, coal mine owners and all dealing with fuel and other industrial problems here.

In this country we burn up the coal, let three-quarters of its value go up the chimney. The Germans know better.

CIRCLE ONE

Circle No. 1 of the Missionary Society of the Central Methodist church held its meeting in the friendship rooms of the church Monday afternoon. It was a called meeting for the discussion of immediate business. The chairman, Mrs. M. Ford called the meeting to order at three, the strong interest the members of the circle have in affairs of the church was evidenced by the excellent attendance. More than twenty five members assembled. The grand old hymn "More Love for Thee" was sung, with Mrs. Coggeshall at the piano. Mrs. L. P. Troup lead the lesson in her usual interesting intelligent style giving some readings of Margaret Sangster on slogans "Get it First but get it Right." Plans were perfected for serving dinner to the Kiwanians.

Fort McInville is fortunate in having one of America's famous artists, Mary Jourdan, distinguished American Contralto who in private life is the wife of C. C. Cresson, Judge Advocate, who arrived on a transport on Tuesday.

She will be a great addition to the musical life of Manilla as she is an artist of international fame and has been the leading contralto in the Century Opera company of New York and has appeared with America's foremost orchestras. Her recital programs are of especial interest as she sings in eight different languages. Few artists are in such constant demand and few have greater artistry.

Manilla will have the pleasure of hearing this great artist as she will give a series of recitals here.

Major and Mrs. Cresson arrived on the Thomas on Tuesday and are the guests of Lieutenant and Mrs. John Connor.—Manilla Daily Bulletin.

Hartselle News

The next term of the M. C. H. S. began Monday, August 24, at 9:30 a. m., to which a large number of students reported for study. Many patrons and friends of the institution gathered to be present, and listened to a splendid address delivered in the chapel by Mrs. J. H. McCoy president of the Athens Female College. The address was a splendid effort, and was listened to with close attention throughout.

Following the exercises in the chapel, students were assigned their various rooms and classified, and dismissed at noon until Tuesday morning when the actual work of the term will begin.

Rev. Davidson, who with Mrs. Davidson, is spending a vacation period her with Dr. and Mrs. Lovelady, parents of Mrs. Davidson, occupied the pulpit at the First Methodist church last Sunday morning at eleven o'clock service. His remarks of the hour were based on that well remark of St. Paul, "though I speak with tongue of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am nothing."

Rev. G. C. Walker, pastor of the First Baptist church preached at the union service last Sunday night on the lawn of the First Christian church. These open air services have been very popular throughout the summer months, and will come to a close with the service there next Sunday night.

L. G. Gulley is spending the week in Lawrence county looking after his large cedar mill and other interests there.

In the death of "Aunt" Sallie Young and "Aunt" Hannah McDaniel, two faithful negro women of Hartselle, which occurred last week, the town lost two of whom had served their day and generation well. Both of these women had ministered whenever called upon, and their services were of a very high order, and their passing was mourned by all who knew them. Many white people attended their funerals, and several floral wreaths were sent by those who had been the recipients of their faithful ministrations and devotion to duty.

S. M. Nelson and family attended a reunion of the Nelson Holmesapple families at Cherokee, Ala., last Saturday, at which nearly one hundred family relations were present. Mr. Nelson reports a most enjoyable occasion, at which time a sumptuous feast of good things to eat was enjoyed, and a meeting of relatives who had not seen each other for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith are now occupying their newly completed residence in the eastern part of town, moving into it last week.

Monday morning the ginning establishment of Messrs Payne Bros. was running, ginning up several bales of cotton bought last week. Picking is becoming quite general throughout this section, much of the cotton opening prematurely on account of rust and continued dry, hot weather.

S. A. Blear is expected home from the eastern markets this week.

Fred Hammond is in St. Louis Mo., where he is learning the stock of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., and will go on the road for this firm when he completes the training course.

Prof. and Mrs. Anderson, popularly known as "Coach Anderson" because of his activities in training the football team of the M. C. H. S. arrived last Saturday, and Monday morning took up his duties at the M. C. H. S. It is understood that he will begin at once to put prospective football players through training, and will organize the team for the coming season soon.

Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Anthony who have been on a visit of several days to friends and relatives in Georgia, is expected home this week, and will occupy his pulpit next Sunday morning, and will preach the last sermon at the open air services Sunday night.

Time to Face the Facts

"So much has been said against the use of patent medicines that I have had a strong prejudice against them. But after four years doctoring with six different doctors, without results, for acute indigestion, gastritis, constipation, appendicitis and other ailments, I was said to possess, I was encouraged to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, seeing what it had done for a friend similarly afflicted. I also was entirely relieved of my trouble, and am sure this medicine will do all and more than is claimed for it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all Druggists.—Adv.

State Campaign To Be Opened 3

By R. B. Vail

Secretary Alabama Press Association Chambers of Commerce and Civic Clubs are showing interest in all Alabama Advertising campaign and many of them will send delegations to the meeting at Montgomery, Thursday, September 3.

President J. C. McLendon, of the Alabama Press Association has received numerous letters commending the course of the executive committee in calling this meeting of county and city officials, civic, social and commercial bodies of men and women to make plans for advertising the entire state. The views expressed in these messages are fully summed up in the following letter which Mr. McLendon received this week from W. F. Black, General Secretary of the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce:

Eva News

All the typhoid patients are able to be out except Monroe Childers and he is doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Stewart and son, Odem of Winchester, Tenn., have been the guests of Mrs. Nolia Puryear the past week. They are now visiting relatives in Cullman.

Misses Vada Puckett is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Jewe Evans, of Six Miles and attending the meeting that is being held there.

Mrs. Myrtis Holloway and children of Florence are visiting relatives here.

Miss Varona and Warner Russell of Birmingham will be here with friends and relatives until the 1st of September.

Miss Sallie Daves of Addison, has spent the previous week with her brother and family, Dr. Daves. She and Mrs. Daves and Boyd Puryear will motor to Birmingham early Sunday morning to call on their sisters, Miss Mildred Daves and Miss Ruth Puryear, who are employed at the South Highland hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernul Gurley were in Eva on business Monday.

Friends may perhaps be surprised to know of the return of Willie Patten, who for seven years has been in the United States Army. A great rejoicing was made by the entire family, and his mother almost collapsed. He states that he is here to stay.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Chaffins a daughter August 19th.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Oden and family attended the meeting at Piney Grove last week.

Three of the Eva Carpenters, Ed Puryear, Bert Murphree and Dee Scruggs have been at Bridgeport for the last two weeks, constructing a barn on the farm of Dr. Daves of Eva.

There will be a school meeting held Wednesday night in the school auditorium. All who are interested in school activities were invited to attend.

Revs. Creal and White filled their regular appointments at Eva and Oden Ridge, respectively, Sunday.

The protracted meeting is being held at Etha this week.

J. W. Boyd and son, Basil have been the guests of relatives at Joppa, for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams motored to Huntsville Sunday morning to call on his sister, Mrs. Cora Davis and family.

Bertice Morgan of Birmingham was here Sunday.

Robert Rhine is in Albany on business.

"I am heartily in accord with some movement which will have for its aims and purposes the presentation to the country generally the wonderful resources of our good state, and I recommend your idea in bringing together the various development agencies of Alabama with the hope that out of such a meeting some plan may be evolved whereby, we can as a people, become more enthused over our own possibilities, and, at the same time, give to the world facts in regard to Alabama which will certainly interest capital in investing with us and individuals in coming to this state to have a part in the development which is bound to come.

"I think the time is now most opportune for some such movement. We have only to look to other states which have popularized themselves to see that unselfish co-operative effort does bring substantial results.

"When I first entered the service of this organization four or five years ago, I made an effort to get the various Chambers of Commerce throughout the state into what we planned to be a 'state Chamber of Commerce,' the idea being that through that agency, with the co-operation of the individual units, the facts pertaining to Alabama and her resources might be assembled and systematically disseminated. We were not successful in interesting more than four or five cities, and the movement was held up indefinitely. Probably you are familiar with the efforts which were made by our friends in Birmingham to organize what is known as 'Greater Alabama, Inc.' Nothing definite has developed in that line as yet. We thought that after the splendid showing that Alabama made at the Southern Exposition in New York that this would give an impetus to all sections of Alabama to carry on the advantage that we had from that splendid display of our resources, and I believe that the realization of Alabama's accomplishment on that occasion will go a long way towards bringing to the plan you are now perfecting an enthusiasm which will be of great value.

"The marvelous advancement in the way of progress being made in our sister state of Florida, is causing the eyes of the entire country to be focused on the South and it is peculiarly fortunate for us here in Alabama, as we see it, for situated as we are, large numbers of people are coming through our state who would not otherwise hear of our facilities and unquestionably many will realize the opportunities here and avail themselves of them.

"I feel sure that the organization which I have the honor to represent, will be glad to co-operate in any way possible, and trust that you will feel at liberty to call on us at any time. I know your plans are in their formative states, but I do realize the fact that, with the splendid newspapers of our state taking an active part in a state wide campaign, I can see success in the movement, and am sure that all other agencies in this state that have the good of this commonwealth at heart will rally to the plan, as have our state and county officials, because, as I see it, it is going to require their hearty co-operation. It is going to take real money, and lots of it, but the returns will unquestionably justify the investment."

Ship NOW! the Railroads Face an Enormous Task

Statisticians and well posted traffic authorities, both in and out of the railroad business, have estimated that two million more freight cars will be required in 1925 than in 1924.

This estimate is supported by the fact that during the first eighteen weeks of the current year, nearly half a million more cars were used than during the same period last year.

Fall stocks of merchandise and bumper crops must be transported. The railroads have the biggest task on their hands that they have ever had to accomplish. You can help by ordering shipments out now, before the October and November rush comes on.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad has added to its equipment 2,000 freight cars and 25 engines since the first of the year, representing an investment of $4,700,000. This railroad is trying to do its part.

Southern League Scandal Now Up
To High Commissioner Of Baseball

President Martin, chief executive of the Southern Baseball Association, has completed his investigation of the recent "scandal" in the Dixie loop, and the evidence now is before K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball who is expected to make known his decision within a day or two. Having a reputation for doing the unexpected, however, fans will not be any too certain that his decision will be forthcoming at the expected time.

President Martin deserves the appreciation of fans all over the Southern League because of the promptness with which he took hold of the situation. The rumors that someone affiliated with the New Orleans club had approached Nashville players, with a view of having the latter "lay down" on their club, so they could be returned to the major clubs to which they belonged, then to be sent to New Orleans, probably were in circulation some days before President Martin was aware of them.

Then, when they were published, he lost no time in launching a sweeping inquiry into their truth or falsity. He declined to act hurriedly and without proper information. In fact, President Martin has not yet intimated by even a word what kind of evidence of the existing of such a plot, he found.

If Commissioner Landis had acted with the same discretion when he was inquiring into the New York Giant-Phillie scandal, he would have saved himself much criticism.

The Athletics and Senators appear to love each other so well, they do not enjoy separation. If one wins, both win. If one loses, they both lose. Both lost yesterday.

have another thriller. The Athletics had runners on third and first, with nobody out. Galloway hit to Spurgeon at second, and he touched out the runner on first, threw to Luke Sewell and trapped Miller at the plate. Galloway turned first, and started to second when he saw the play made at the plate. L. Sewell tossed to his brother Joe, and Galloway was thrown out at second. A triple play, and without a fly ball having been hit for one of the outs. That play should stand as a record for uniqueness for many moons.

BAMA LOOKS GOOD

(Associated Press)
UNIVERSITY, Ala., Aug. 26.—Alabama's Crimson Tide will play only two games out of the State this year. One of these will be played at Atlanta on October 24, when the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech are to play hosts to the Crimson hordes, and the other to Baton Rouge, La., on October 30. Louisiana State University will be the foe of the Crimson on this date. The other seven games of the Tide schedule will be split between the home field, Birmingham and Montgomery, three games to be played at the University, three at Birmingham and one at the Capital City.

Bama's grid season opens on September 25 with Union, the same team that has helped to tilt the lid for the last two seasons by contributing a scalp to Alabama's belt on each occasion. The game will be played on Denny field. Birmingham-Southern follows Union on the schedule for the first game between two teams in some years. This game will be played at the University on October 2. Then comes the trip to Louisiana.

Following the battle with the L.S. J. Tigers, Bama will continue on a 'eline diet the following Saturday by keeping a rendezvous at Birmingham with the Tigers of Sewanee. This game is always a colorful affair. The Tigers and Tide being foes of long standing.

The Tech Yellow Jackets, the next course on the Tide menu will entertain the Alabamians at Grant Field on the aforesaid date of October 24. The ensuing battle is sure to be one of much interest, the two teams always being on tip-toe for the encounter.

The Mississippi Aggies will co-operate with the Tide in providing amusement for Alabama's homecoming at Tuscaloosa on October 31. The Aggies visit the Tide on a dual arrangement by which the 'Bama lads will go to Mississippi next year to help entertain at the Aggie homecoming.

Florida and Alabama meet on neutral territory at Montgomery on November 14 for what is expected to be a momentous engagement. This game is sure to be a keen appetizer for the wind up affair with Georgia in Birmingham on Thanksgiving day. This game was once played at Montgomery but has been shifted over to the Magic City to provide a Turkey Day thrill for the Smoke Eaters.

Although the Crimson have not signed an inter-sectional tilt for this year, it is not hard to see that they will have to battle vigorously many times this season if they would maintain their record through 1925, for Georgia, Kentucky, Florida and Teel carry threats this year, while Sewanee, A. and M., L. S. U. and Birmingham Southern are all well known for their fighting qualities. The Southerners from Birmingham will probably be watched narrowly this year as a result of their holding Auburn to one touchdown last season.

The Tide's coaching staff is no pessimistic this year, although Wade reports that his team is afflicted with the same ailment that has stricken Vandy and Georgia, a lack of linesmen. It is believed that Wade can patch his line with the material available unless developments prove unfavorable, however.

Probably one of the greatest holes in the line that will have to be filled was left gaping by the decision of "Pinky" McCintock, captain elect and end of note, not to return to school this fall. Another hole was caused just recently by an operation performed upon Pickard, who was held to be a great prospect.

Hudson, stellar flanker, will return to school, and with Terry Wall and Hoyt Winslett at hand, the Tide's flanks should be well covered. Home last year freshman player, may get in at center. Other linemen that are available include Jones and Camp, besides several other more or less dark horses.

The wealth of backfield talent that will be available this year is the delight of Alabama fans' hearts. Pooley, Hubert, Mack Brown, Grant, Gillis, Emie Barnes, Jimmy Johnson and Dave Rosenfeld are all coming back.

ACTIVITY SHOWN IN MINERAL
FIELDS OF MAGIC CITY DISTRICT

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 26.—Few weeks have been more active in Alabama steel, iron and coal fields than the one just closing, according to a survey of the industrial situation over the state.

The marked activity has been traced directly to the intensive building program being carried out in many sections of the country. Structural steel, pipe, both soil and pressure, coal and cement are finding heavy demand, particularly in the middle west, east and in Florida. A single pipe company engaged in the manufacture of pressure pipe and fittings in Birmingham last week shipped 1,500,000 pounds of finished product. Other plants of similar lines report proportionate production.

Pig iron is still quoted at $18.50 for No. two foundry for immediate delivery. The bars are being sold in small lots mostly. The melt and movement in the home territory is particularly heavy. Much of the production is going to the middle west.

The make in pig iron is being increased somewhat since the Woodward Iron company has blown in one of its furnaces which has been idle for some weeks. The Woodward company is now operating three furnaces in making foundry metal and one on basic. It is understood that the latter plant will be removed to Newport, Ky., soon.

On the whole basic iron production has been greater than foundry production during the week.

The official iron production figures for the state for the first six months were 1,442,527 tons as compared with 1,392,340 tons or the same period of 1924. The production for the last half of 1924 was 1,381,485 tons and for the entire year of 1924, 2,773,825 tons. The pig iron production for Alabama in 1917 was 2,953,705 tons. That was the record year for Alabama production.

Steel continued good, all steel ingots made being bought and shipped to every section of the United States.

The latest report of the United States Steel Corporation shows that subsidiaries are operating close to 73 per cent of capacity, compared with 31 per cent early in July. According to the statement 'business is reported to be still below the volume of shipments, although demand is better, increasing operations being due largely, it is said, to active specifying against old contracts. Prices of steel products show a tendency to sag. Plates have been sold at $1.75 per 100 pounds and bars at $1.85, these quotations representing a decline of $1 a ton this week's official level and $3 from last week's prices.'

An active steel trade is expected to last throughout the remainder of the year.
